From Chanceller Kent's Eulogy on the author.

"The American Dictionary of the English Language, is a work of profound investigation, and does infinite bonor to the philological learning and general literature of this country. Happy the man who can thus honorably identify his name with the existence of our vernacular tongue. There is no other way in which mortal man could more effectually secure immortality beneath the skies. Obelicks, arches, and immortality beneath the skies. Obelisks, arches, and triumphal monuments seem to be as transient as the bubble of military reputation. No work of art can withstand the incressant strokes of time. The unrivalled Parthenon, glowing in polished marble, and which, for more than two thousand years continued from the summit of the citadel of Athena to cast its broad splendors across the plains below and along the coasts and headlands of Attica, is now crumbling to ruine, after being desconded of its most extended. the coasts and headlands of Attica, is now crumbling to ruins, after being deepoled of its most exquisite materials by savage war and hearliess man.—
Even the Pyramids of Egypt, whose origin is hidder, in the deepest recesses of antiquity, and which have always stood in awe-inspiring solitude and grandeur,
are now annoyed by the depredations of curiosity,
and greatly correded by the scion of the elements, and gradually sinking under the encroaching sandof the desert. This dictionary, and the language which it embodies will also perish; but it will not be with the gorgeous pulaces. It will go with the solemn temples and the great globe itself."

The Publishers of the foregoing work respectfull

The Publishers of the foregoing work respectfully announce that they have made arrangements with Mr. F. Taylor, Boukseller, of Washington city, to furnish the American Dictionary, in two large volumes, at the very reduced price of twelve dollars. It is to be understood that for this price the best paper and type, and the best binding, will be supplied—the best capies, that is to say, in all respects.

The very valuable supplement, which is contained in no other edition than the present one, should not be passed unnoticed; it contains four thousand words, not given in any other dictionary; was only completed by Dr. Webster in 1843, immediately before the suckness which terminated his valuable life, and has been published and copy-righted, since his death, by his executors. his executors.

The work is now therefore in a finished and com plete state, it is not to be supposed that any thing more can or will be added to it; the present edition de-fining and illustrating twenty thousand more words more can or will be added to it; the present edition defining and illustrating twenty thousand more word than the edition which, when it first issued from the hands of Dr. Websier, was acknowledged by the English philologists to be the best dictionary in the world.

MISS HEANEY, of Boston, Massachusetts, principal instructress, respectfully gives notice to parents and guardians of her resuming the education of Young Ladies in this city in the former family residence of Col. Bumford, according to her early purposes of educating boarding pupils as a family, with a convenient number of day scholars. Her own personal instruction and care being given to each of her pupils individually in whatever pursuits of learning or accomplishments they may engage. Assistant instructreases will be resident in her family, and exclusively engaged to aid her responsibly as professors in this charge. One of the most skilful in Vocal and Instrumental Music will always be so engaged; other professors will attend to give lessons, as may be required, but only with her own attention to her pupils as principal. The many years occupancy of this house by Col. Bomford's family evinces healthness of the situation well; and its apaciousness, pleasant teen, of range twenty-five.

which will preserve unimpaired the sacred instrument from which we borrow the name; and as constantly oppose whatever is not sanctioned by it. We shall unceasingly oppose a National Bank—a Protective Tariff—Internal Improvement by the Ganeral Government—a Distribution of the Pro-reds of the sales of the Public Lands—Assumption of the State Debts—an abrogation of the Executive Veto, as unconstitutional and inexpedient.

We hope to make the paper worthy of the confidence and support of the Democratic party. It shall be the faithful expositor of their principles, and the ever ready medium to convey their sentiments and wishes to the public. The Democratic cause, is the cause of truth and justice. It courts the light. It shuns no investigation. And we are determined to see whether a paper, conducted with a devotion to the principles, rather than to the mon of our party—to further the great cause of human progress, rather than the mere advancement of particular individuals, will not commend itself to the confidence and favor of thepeople.

As soon as the all engrossing topics of the elections are over, we shall devote a liberal portion of our columns to subjects of general literature and science; endeavoring to present such matter as will amuse, instruct, and edify.

The proceedings of Congress will receive particular attention, and a full and comprehensive summary will be given, including the yeas and mays upon all important questions.
